ALEXANDRIA ACADEMY.—The fall term of this institution, will commence on Monday, August 31st. The course of study embraces the usual branches of an English Education, the Latin, Greek, and French Languages, and a full course in Mathematics. Youths can be prepared in this School for College, the Counting-Room, or the study of a Profession.—Instruction is given by means of Text-Books, Lectures, and familiar remarks and illustrations on each recitation.

To every student is assigned recitations sufficient, in the judgment of the teacher, to occupy the hours allotted to study; and, at the time for reciting, he is thoroughly examined, and such explanations are then given, as will enable him to understand the subject fully, and aid in impressing it clearly upon the mind.

A monthly report of each student, carefully made out from records preserved of all his recitations, is sent to parents and guardians, presenting a faithful account of his industry, scholarship, and general deportment.

The students will have the advantage of an attendance upon a regular course of LECTURES on NATURAL PHILOSOPHY and CHEMISTRY delivered during the fall and winter months. These lectures will be fully illustrated, by a beautiful and complete set of Apparatus. The School is also supplied with Surveying Instruments, Globes, Maps, Charts and a REFLECTING TELESCOPE, of eight feet focal length, a powerful and effective instrument.

In connection with the present School, which has been heretofore open for the admission of day scholars only, a limited number of BOARDING SCHOLARS will be received. Those who attend the School as boarders, will reside in the family of the Principal, and as only a small number will be received, such attention to their morals and comfort will be given, as will, it is believed, supply, in a great measure, the tender solicitude received under the parental roof.

TERMS.—The charge for boarding, washing, fuel and lights, with Tuition in English, Latin and Greek, $150 a year, payable quarterly, in advance. The quarters to consist of 12 weeks each. Tuition in French, Drawing and Painting, an extra charge.

THE HARVEST HOME.

When autumn freely yields
All her golden treasures,
When those who reap the fields,
Partake of harvest pleasures,
This, lads, is harvest home;
Those who labor daily,
Well know 'tis sweet to come,
And pass the evening gay,
Then let each heart be light,
Here's no room for sorrow,
Joy holds her court to-night,
Care may come to-morrow.

Now let the lab'rer wipe his brow,
Rest and plenty wait him;
Barn, cellar, rick and mow
Are filled to recreate him.
Seythe, sickle, rake and hoe,
All are now suspended,
Like trophies in a row,
For future use intended.
Then let each heart be light, &c.

Now gay Pomona's store,
Past exertion bleases,
Rich streams of nectar pour,
Sparkling from her tresses.
Full goblets streaming broad,
Crown the farmer's labors,
These real bliss afford.
When shared by friendly neighbors,
Then let each heart be light,
Here's no room for sorrow,
Joy holds her court to night,
Care may come to-morrow.

CHOICE READING.

"If you enlighten the people, do not forget that this is but half the work. Let them be made virtuous and religious, or you leave them more exposed to danger than they were before."

THERE ARE NO GRAVES THERE!

BY N. G. SLEEPER.

Late in the afternoon of a beautiful summer day, I entered a quiet grave yard, where slept one of my dearest friends. It occupied the brow of a hill, which, with many a knoll and graceful undulation sloped to the green meadow, watered by a winding stream, now catching, at its repeated curves, the rays of the setting sun.

On the left was a pleasant wood where the sturdy pine and fruit-bearing beech concealed narrow paths to cool caves and mossy banks.

White birches and the tremulous aspen, with the sweet scented willow grew upon the right, and, from beyond, rose the curling smoke from the cottage homes. A robin sang its song of love and praise, a sparrow passed me bearing food for its little progeny, and the chirp of the merry grasshopper mingled with the hum of hundreds of flitting insects.

But for this peace-breathing scene I had no greeting. The wild storm, thunder, and rain, and darkness, had seemed far more welcome, and yielding utterly to my grief, I threw myself upon the sod. I took no heed of time, but many minutes had passed when a child approached me. She looked on me tenderly for an instant, and then laying one hand upon my arm and raising the other towards heaven, said earnestly—"There are no graves there."

There was something almost seraphic in the countenance of the child, a power of earth in quick and undoubting faith. My eye sought the blue depths towards which she pointed, my heart bounded towards the infinite. All the representations of the Gospel, adapted as they are to soothe and cheer, came to me so vivid, so truthful, so full of meaning, that they absorbed my whole soul. The abundant promises seemed to glow with the hues of that heaven from whence they came. At once I perceived the selfishness of my sorrow, and kneeling, I thanked God that He had transferred my loved one to Himself.

Often, since then, I have looked upon the resting places of my kindred; often, has there come over me a sense of utter hopelessness desolation; often has an agony like that of death, turned to bitterness the continued blessings of my lot. Yet, when the first burst of grief has passed, I see again that lovely child, and hear the soul-cheering assurance—"There are no graves there!"

DOW ON MATRIMONY.

Dow, Jr., closes a sermon on kissing with the following quaint advice, comprising all the essentials of wedded bliss:

"I want you, my young sinners, to kiss and get married, and then devote your time to morality and money making. Then let your homes be well provided with such comforts and necessities as pity, pickles, pots, kettles, brushes, brooms, benevolence, bread, charity, cheese, crackers, faith, flour, affection, sincerity, onions, integrity, vinegar, virtue, pickles, and wisdom. Have all these always on hand, and happiness will be with you. Don't drink any thing intoxicating—eat moderately—go about your business soon after breakfast—loungue a little after dinner—chat after tea, and kiss after quarrelling; and the joy, the peace, and the bliss the world can afford, shall be yours, till the grave closes over you, and your spirits are wafted to a brighter and happier world."

DRESS AND DEMEANOR OF LADIES.

If slovenness is culpable in man, how utterly inexcusable it is in a woman!—No female that has regard for herself, or any respect for the society in which she moves, will be neglectful of her personal appearance. It is true there is danger of running into the opposite extreme—of attaching much importance and giving too much time to dress; but it is easy to hit a happy medium in this respect, and do perfect justice to the toilet at the same time, that no moral, social, or intellectual duty is slighted. There are few members of the sex so deficient in comeliness of face or figure, that an appropriate and artist like style of dress, they may not appear to advantage to all capable of appreciating the agreeable and the beautiful in art. To be appropriate it does not follow that a dress need be extravagant. There is a nameless charm about their style of dress with some women, which seems a part of their character, it is so indescribable. It is not in costliness of material nor in brilliancy of colors, but in the felicity of adaption of color, style and manufacture. The dress seems as naturally a part of them as their hair. We feel that other costume would be inappropriate. The "Cynthia of the minutes" seems to have lent her zone. A lady should study the style of dress most appropriate and becoming to her, and follow it, uninfluenced by the paltry ambition of leading off a fashion, or flaunting in expensive robes. We all know that different colors suits different complexions, and different styles, different figures. Every lady should have that degree of artificial cultivation to be able to decide for herself on the fashion more suitable to her person. In the lack of this accomplishment let her consult a competent judge.
